Stress is a mental or emotional state that results from adverse circumstances. It's a kind of psychological pain.

It can be of two kinds.

- Positive stress that helps to improve the performance or helps to evolve the person's state.
- Negative stress that is a sign of disturbed or depressed mind.

Negative stress impacts our entire body, mind and spirit.

Pathophysiology of Stress:-

This is a major cause behind the acid reflux. In our physical body it is required to maintain a balance between acid and alkaline to keep the body perfectly healthy and hence mostly it regulates the mood and emotions. So our body should not be more acidic or highly alkaline. Sometimes apart from the diet our negative mental stress act as an acid booster in the body. In the other way,

A disturbed or depressed mind is an indication of irregular function of physique.

Stress relieving techniques-

- Get some quality time for self.
- Take the situation as it is and respond before you react.
- Yoga and relaxation.

Yogic Management of Stress:-

Yoga is a complete lifestyle that includes physical practices, breathing practices and relaxation, meditation. Yoga is a total compilation of asanas, pranayama, diet and meditation. Asanas are to stretch the body, allowing the prana to flow more. Remaining in a postures makes the mind more stable enabling the breath flow slow and steady, add on strength and stability to the muscles and bones.

Pranayama is a control over breath and modification of the flow. It lifts the mind to the deeper state of calmness which brings us to a meditative state. The more deep and long is the breath so the person has a strong and right decision making power.

Pure and proper diet plays a great role for the mind. Sattvic diet is easy to digest, it is nutritious, never exaggerates the body mechanism and indirectly helps for a lite and better mood, reducing the stress.

Meditation acts as a capsule for any kind of mental and emotional disturbances. It has the power to take the mind straight away from the negative and complex thoughts to a positive and stable state by a little regular practice. The person gets the motivation and energy to face and overcome the situation.

Mechanism of Yoga for relieving Stress:-

Yoga practice helps to stimulate the vagus nerve to secrete acetylcholine which is a neurotransmitter that lowers heart rate and makes us calm. Yoga targets for raising in a positive mood by shifting the mood swing to the stabled state, by increasing self- compassion. IT helps enabling us to be in the present moment and to be more focus, helps us to be away from all the thoughts that bother us.

So Yoga act as a superb stress buster.
