

IT'S HARD TO BE A KID NOW-A-DAYS.

Our children live in a super-fast world of busy schedule of parents, deal with many distractions, overstimulation, challenging school life, improper diet, video (Mobile /Tabs) games, malls, and computers. We usually don't think this can be of stressful for our kids rather than relaxation.

JSP yoga has found that yoga is a low-cost, helpful tool which can help to overcome these pressures. When our children will learn the yogic procedure for good-health, mental-relaxation, and inner joy, they can fight with life's challenges with a little more ease and fundamentally.

Yoga at an early age encounters self-esteem and motivates body fitness with a psychophysical activity. Yogis have developed the asanas, as the representative of the natural world and used animals and plants for inspiration.

When children imitate the qualities of nature, they have a chance to live like them taking on its qualities. For example, the lion (Simhasana) pose makes our kids learn not only the power of the lion, but also their own sense of power: like when to be aggressive and when to retreat.

Yoga with children provides many opportunities to explore wisdom, share quality times, and to create the foundation for a lifelong practice that will continue to deepen.

Children gets enormous benefits from yoga. Physically, it enhances their strength, flexibility, concentration, growth and mental awareness. In addition, their state of thinking and sense of behaviour improves.

• 2. Strengthening and Bending

Stretching and bending is not only providing more flexibility but also gives more strength to the bone and muscle. Skeletal muscles used in poses and asanas will help to build strength as well as body balance and coordination. Stretching helps to maintain a healthy body weight and can fulcrum the stress of carrying heavy loads. Bending asanas are efficiently protect the more fragile joints.

3. Balancing

In kids' yoga, some asanas are fast moving in other hand others are slower one. This allows children to learn how to balance, enhancing their awareness and focus. Balancing techniques enhances children attention naturally, it helps in kids who have different attention challenges. Asanas and poses focused on balancing skills, develop inner strength.

• 4. Flexibility

Children are born with natural flexibility and yoga helps to prolong this gift. Asanas in this developing stage provides strength in their growing muscles and bones. Strength and flexibility prevents fewer and less-severe injuries, especially in sports. Strong muscles without proper flexibility can't favor quick moves, pulling on bones and joints.

• 5. Mental Awareness and focus

Yoga helps create awareness in the mind through deep skilful breathing and proper movement. It gives kids a way to build a strong connection between motor and sensory nerves. Children those have healthy body and mind are more confident and strong.

• 6. Meditation and relaxation

Yoga is a derivative method of meditation. Meditation and relaxation are equally important as like other asanas. Relaxation and meditation post yoga exercises help to improve the inner strength and provides peace to the mind.
